Editorial Comment

1970 Is Crucial Year Of Viet War

When historians write the complete history of the Vietnam war, there is little doubt that they will agree on one point: 1965 was the crucial year in the early stages of the conflict.

It was America's rapid infusion of weaponry and manpower during that year which pulled tottering South Vietnam back from the brink of a Communist take-over, even while raising the war to new levels of ferocity as North Vietnam in turn stepped up its participation.

It is, of course, too early to tell, but it may well be recorded that not 1968, when Lyndon B. Johnson retired from the presidency and Richard M. Nixon was elected to it, and not 1969, when the new President initiated the policy of "Vietnamization," but 1970 was the crucial year in the final stages of the conflict.

President Nixon has announced his intention of withdrawing another 150,000 U.S. soldiers over the next 12 months—barring unlooked-for deterioration in the situation in Southeast Asia. This would bring America's troop strength to its lowest level since 1965.

This is good news, even though it borrows against a very uncertain future. What we do not like to think about is the other side of the cointhat another year of war, based on the current battlefield death rate, means the investment of the lives of another 5,000 young American men on top of the 40,000 already expended to bring about the "just peace" the President

Another natural tendency is to accept as a fact that since the President announced last summer his intention to Vietnamize the war, this is what has actually occurred with the withdrawal since then of some 108,000 American soldiers.

It is based on the assumption that U.S. troop strength at its high point-542,000 men—was no more and no less than was absolutely essential.

But if that assumption is not valid, if those 100,000-plus troops were mostly excess fat, then what we have witnessed in the past nine or 10 months is not so much "Vietnamization" of the war as "de-Americanization."

The President's military advisers fear he has cut away not fat but muscle, and too deeply and too quickly. The President's decision was obviously a compromise between pressures from the generals and pressures from any number of other sources, including his own commitment to end the war and his knowledge that the nation will not tolerate very much reneging on that commitment.

That is why 1970 looms as so crucial a year, for it is the year when the real test of South Vietnam's ability to take over its own defense will begin.

Confederacy's Dollars Sound

An appropriate footnote to the current story of the South's rise again in political importance popped up the other day under a Yankee dateline.

Up in New Haven, Conn., Yale University has come into quite a bit of money. Confederate money, and Yale is delighted. Thanks to a gift of some 9,000 notes and other once-negotiable C.S.A., paper, Yale now has one of the largest and most valuable collections of Confederate currency in the world, worth something like $100,000 on today's booming collector's market.

You don't have to look far for the ironic point. What with the dollar continuing to lose its battle with inflation, saving Confederate money turns out to have been a good idea after all.

FDA Probes Charges Of Lab Results Manipulation

By G. C. THELEN Jr. Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) - The Food and Drug Administration is investigating charges that agency officials have manipulated laboratory results for years to avoid weakening or contradicting established government policies on food additives and pesticide safety. The charges, leveled by Dr Howard L. Richardson, chief pathologist in the FDA's Bureau of Science, contend middle-level bureaucrats with limited scientific training have expunged conclusions and recommendations from reports on animal experiments because they cast doubt on FDA policies.

The findings might have caused FDA policy makers to reconsider "safe" labels for certain food additives and coloring agents and to re-estimate permissible pesticide levels for Richardson's Oct. 20, 1969dated memorandum to then FDA Commissioner Herbert L. Ley triggered a high-level, ongoing investigation, headed by Dr. Dale R. Lindsay, associate commissioner for science.

Ley, in an interview this week, termed Richardson's allegations "extremely sensitive and of major importance." Ley left the FDA last December and is now a private consultant.

A pathologist employed by the FDA especially to probe the charges has found substantial support for Richardson's posi-

"There have been modifications of statements and reports" said the consultant, Dr. Harold B. Stewart, retired chief pathologist for the National Cancer Institute. Stewart emphasized in an interview his findings were still preliminary.

Richardson's allegations, according to one congressional expert on the FDA, "cast doubt on the integrity of all FDA scientific positions for decades.

The FDA is a primary research center on the effects of additives and pesticides on human health and Richardson's charges deal with these factors -not drugs.

Richardson went directly to Ley, avoiding bureaucratic channels, after reviewing an FDA seeding experiment involving the artificial sweetener cyclamate done 20 years before.

The government imposed restrictions on cyclamates in 1969 after outside experiments linking the chemicals to bladder cancer, genetic damage and birth defects in animals.

Richardson, who joined the agency in 1968, said the old FDA slides and laboratory work sheets revealed what he termed a suspiciously high incidence of cancer in the test animals. The cancer findings were not mentioned in the published report.

The pathologist who conducted the original research told Richardson a nonpathologist superior had written the report and that he, the pathologist, had only signed it.

Richardson quoted the superior who prepared the 1951 report as saying policy decisions were "made on high level, and it was up to him, Dr. F to see that the official positions were carried out ... the pathologist had to support such decisions, as he, Dr. F had been reinterpreting data for 30 years.

Richardson's memorandumas supplied to the Associated Press by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare -used initials rather than names of involved officials. The original memo included names.

Experts believe cyclamates might not have been widely used-or possibly even permitted-if the 1951 cancer findings had been known by scientists.

Richardson blamed what he termed the disgraceful scientific climate in the FDA on separation of research experts from top policy officials by a middle level of bureaucracy.

The middle officials are determined to protect their jobs by supporting top level policy decisions at all costs, he said.

Asked to comment on the probe, current FDA Commissioner Dr. Charles C. Edwards said through a spokesman: " am determined that we will make the maximum effort to make the judgment of our scentists available as quickly as possible to top officials of the FDA and the department.'

Edwards has taken at least one step to meet the complaints of Richardson and other likeminded scientists.

He has inaugurated a special new reporting channel to allow scientists to take "extremely important information" directly to the commissioner, bypassing normal bureaucratic stops.

New Moon Shots

By KAY CROMLEY NEA Washington Correspondent WASHINGTON (NEA) - The Apollo 13 power failure could cause a delay of one year in the manned moon space pro-

This was the time lost after the disastrous Apollo fire. The problem is this: Virtually all detailed evidence of what went wrong was irretrievably lost on the way down from space-the batteries that failed, the breakdown in the oxygen containers or oxygen feeder system (one or another of which probably caused the batteries to fail)

Something may be learned from photos taken by the astronauts, from a detailed study of the telemetering of the space ship's gadgetry during flight as monitored on earth, from X rays of the equipment made during manufacture, from checks made in preflight testing and from other inspections made in construction and check-

But these may not tell much. If the data on what went wrong does in fact prove insufficient, the scientists will have to guess the cause. This means an extraordinarily great amount of redesigning. When you don't know what's wrong, you are forced into overdesigning and overcompensating generally to make sure the next time. This is slow and very expensive.

The most worrisome fact is that the breakdown took place in a part of the system no one expected to give trouble. The shock of this will lead inevitably to some lessening of confidence in all components in the Apollo. But this need not be a year lost. What's needed now is time to rethink the space program to make certain the priorities

It may be that a stretch-out the moon program would be better all around

Considerable evidence is accumulating within the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and Congress which indicates to some specialists that it would perhaps be wise to divert more of the space money to earth applications.

Here, the evidence suggests, there can be large and fairly rapid pay-offs:

In relatively inexpensive TV schooling systems using space satellites. These can provide a steep increase in education for youngsters and oldsters in developing countries with large populations and little money to spend.

- In worldwide comprehensive storm data collection satellite systems providing information early enough to save lives in times of crisis.

In catallita massurements of snow depths and snow melting that could save hundreds of millions of dollars a year in electric power costs in the United States alone.

- In satellite-aided geological prospecting and in crop yield and disease monitoring by satellites providing data that could be translated into emergency action to meet crop shortages and handle crop surpluses in whatever country they occur.

U.S. - sponsored programs along these lines could dramatically and effectively provide aid for other countries, rich and poor, and win the United States that respect and prestige essential for effective foreign

Again, this aid - from - a - distance will be less likely to get the United States involved in local rivalries and politics than aid as now provided.

I've tried my best to make a home for the younger kids, but it's a losing battle. Dad sends the support checks every month but Mom drinks up most of it. (On top of her own drinking problem, she has some thirsty friends.)

I work after school washing dishes in a cafe. I don't mind not having any social life or time to study as much as I should, but I don't think I ought to be away from the house so much. The little ones need me. Please tell me what to do. -Fargo, N.D.

Dear Fargo: I hope the teenagers who gripe because they aren't getting a car for their 16th birthday will read your letter so they can see what a real problem looks like.

Does your Dad know what goes on? If he doesn't, he should. Have you a favorite aunt or uncle you can talk to? You need to confide in an adult. This problem is too big for a 15-year-old girl to handle alone. If your dad won't do anything and you have no relatives, urge you to talk to your high school counselor. These counselors do a wonderful job of helping kids who have real trouble - and you qualify, Honey. Good luck and please write again and let me know how you are getting along.

Dear Ann Landers: Help! Our adorable boss is vacationing in Europe. Word has reached us that he has bought himself a luxurious hair piece. This dear man does not have one hair on his head. "The new look" is going to be a tremendous shock when he comes home.

band has a pair of relatives who are making me sick. They both retired last year and have more money than everyone in the family put together. They sold their home for $45,000 and moved into an efficiency apartment which they have already subleased. This pair has not spent four weeks at home since they retired. Systematically they sponge off everyone they can think of. Their only expenses are gas and oil. They never bring a steak or a sack of fruit. They never take anyone to a restaurant. They don't even write a thank-you note.

We had them for three weeks in July, three weeks in November and yesterday we received a note saying they are coming again in June. What should we do?-R and S

Dear R and S: If you allow these parasites to do it to you a third time, you deserve it. The best approach is the direct approach. "Sorry, but we can't accommodate you. We are both tired. We'll let you know when the situation changes.'

Q. A company sent me a bill which it had stamped "paid in full." Now they say it was a bookkeeper's error and that I must pay the bill. Doesn't a company have to live with its mistakes?

A. Not in this case. A buyer is legally responsible for any payments which he agrees to make in exchange for goods or services. A bookkeeping error does not modify the original terms of that agreement. -Illinois State Bar Assn.

JACKSONVILLE COLONEL INVITES PRESIDENT NIXON

(Reprint of invitation)

Mr. President,

You are cordially invited to cut the ribbon at the new Kentucky Fried Chicken store at West Morton and West St. in Jacksonville, III., on June 3rd, 1970. This would be a great honor for us, and it would give you a chance to see a city in our country with no race trouble, no student riots, no charge of police brutality, our streets are safe day and night, a city of churches and we are proud of it, and we think you will be too.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)-The stock market closed Friday with moderate losses after making a partial recovery from a steep early-morning selling wave. Trading was light.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed off 2.44 at 733.63. Earlier, it had been down more than 6.

The initial downturn was an emotional reaction to President Nixon's speech Thursday night analysts said. They pointed out, however, that the oversold market probably absorbed the news more easily than a stronger market would.

Bargain hunters helped the market make a mild comeback in midsession, analysts said. A softening of prices toward the close, however, indicated some weekend, analysts said.

Volume was 8.29 million lower; 1-2 sorted 200-225 lbs shares, down from Thursday's butchers 25.00-25.25; 1-3 200-240 9.88 million.

Children love dish gardens, which can be made by using TV dinner trays or pie tins filled with tiny plants from the woods, like violets, moss, etc. With this project, you can teach them conservation, love of nature and how to grow things.—MIRIAM DEAR POLLY and Mrs. K.

Don't lose your shirt

You know this summer won't be hail-free. And you can't be sure hail won't hit your farm.

It doesn't make sense to put a year's crop income on the line. Not when you can get quality coverage from Illinois' largest crop hail insurer-Country Mutual. And not when you remember Country Mutual's reputation for quick claims service. Or its long record of dependable protection.

Keep your shirt this summer. Give me a call.

WE'LL NET THE NEWS FOR YOU!

At Lake Patzcuaro, Mexico, the fishermen get the big ones—and the little ones, too. Because the unusual "butterfly" nets, shown above, let practically nothing escape.

Which is pretty much the way we handle the news at the Journal Courier . . . using the fine mesh of inquiry, interviews and just plain bird-dogging after events. Very little gets away from us, so very little gets away from YOU!

As an extension of your eyes, ears and legs, our reporters cast a mighty fine net around sports, local affairs, politics, women's activities. And bring the news to the surface, bright, shining and fresh. New catch every single issue!

The world is looking you straight in the eye and the young, fashion-alert girls have discovered that this new picture-frame fashion accent demands just the right hat to set off a complete look. Pamela Toll, young New York actress seen daily in mood-setting close-ups for television serials and announcements, has selected four new "face framers." For the tailored mood, the softly draped backtie turban of red, white and blue silk (top left) by Yves St. Laurent gives her a soft, yet efficient, look. What better way for a girl to signal that she has flair than to choose a Spanish gaucho hat of brilliant red with a chic rope tie (top right) by Betmar? The soft, floppy brim of white waffle pique by Frank Olive (lower left) adds charm to Pamela's expression. And last, for the fun of it, a jounty poor boy cap and poncho of brilliant Madras plaid by Betmar.

Half of "Hee Haw" on Wednesday will be replaced by cartoons called "Where's Huddles" and the other half by reruns of "Gomer Pyle." And Jim Nabors himself will be replaced by a music and comedy show known as "Happy Days." "Animal World," seen last summer on CBS, replaces Paulsen on ABC on Thursday.

movie, so obviously many of them will be of broad family ap-peal.

Tommy and Dick apparently are going to be closely watched, both as to ratings and behavior. ABC does not want to become embroiled in the kind of censorship battle that caused their firing by CBS last summer. Presumably, if they pass muster on both categories they will be offered an opening next January. Summer also is the time for silly titles for shows. Try these: "Andy Williams Presents Everything Is Beautiful With Ray Stevens." "Dean Martin Presents the Golddiggers." "Johnny Cash Presents the Everly Brothers Show." I doubt that anyone is going to forget who Andy Williams is over the summer.

In July and August, "Laugh-In" leaves the air to be replaced by longer Monday night movies and a half-hour series to be called "Monday Theatre." It's a potpourri of comedy and drama, which sounds like a mess of re-jected pilots.

THE NEW SEWER PLANT Friday morning was isolated by high water. The waves were lapping at the door to the new plant. A short distance away, the city garage was also filled with water.

ROUTE 78 NORTH of Jacksonville was closed to all but the tallest trucks. Approximately 21/2 feet of water covered a section of highway from the city limits to a point beyond the railroad underpass and bridge over Mauvaisterre Creek.

EAST MORTON AVENUE in front of the municipal light plant was covered with about a foot of water Friday morning. It was the first time in years that traffic on Routes 36-54 and 104 was impeded by water. Several cars stalled out, but highway crews were on hand to assist motorists who tried to drive too fast.
